III. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The following are the significant accounting policies applied by the Company in preparing financial statements:

Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Vietnamese Accounting Standards, Vietnamese Accounting System and prevailing accounting regulations in Vietnam requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets, liabilities and disclosures of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand, demand deposits and short-term, highly liquid investments that are readily convertible to known amounts of cash and which are subject to an insignificant risk of changes in value.

Principles for recording trade receivables and other receivables

Receivables in financial statements represent the book value of account receivables, other receivables and provision for doubtful debt.

Provision for doubtful debt illustrates the potential loss as the result of the amounts owed by customer which, are considered to be doubtful of collection at the balance date. Increase or decrease of the provision account reflects on administration expenses in the year.

Principles for inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost and net realizable value. Cost comprises direct materials and where applicable, direct labor costs and those overheads that have been incurred in bringing the inventories to their present location and condition. Cost is calculated using the weighted average method. Net realizable value represents the estimated selling price less all estimated costs to completion and costs to be incurred in marketing, selling and distribution.

Method of determining inventory value

The Company calculates inventory value using the weighted average method. For goods such as automobiles, the export price is determined using the actual identification method.

Inventory Accounting Method

The Company uses the perpetual inventory method to account for inventory.

Provision for devaluation of inventory

Provision for devaluation of inventories is made for the expected loss in value due to possible diminution in value of supplies, finished products and inventory owned by the enterprise based on reasonable evidence of an impairment at the balance sheet date. The increase or decrease in the provision for devaluation of inventories is recorded in the cost of goods sold during the period.

Tangible fixed assets and depreciation

Tangible fixed assets are stated at cost less accumulated depreciation. The cost of purchased tangible fixed assets comprises its purchase price and any directly attributable costs of bringing the assets to its working condition and location for its intended use.

Tangible fixed assets and intangible fixed assets are depreciated using the straight-line method over their estimated useful lives and accordance with the provisions of the Circular No.45/2013/TT-BTC dated 25 April 2013 and the

Assets	Year(s)
Building, structures	25
Machineries, equipments	05 – 06
Transportations, transmit instruments	05 – 06
Office tools, equipments	03 – 05

Intangible fixed assets and amortizationLand Use Rights

Land use rights are initially recorded at their purchase price and any costs directly attributable to bringing the asset to its intended use. Indefinite land use rights are not amortized.

Software

Computer software is initially stated at purchase price and amortized on a straight-line basis over its estimated useful life of 03 – 05 years.

Recognition Principles for Financial Investments

Investments in subsidiaries are recognized when the Company holds more than 50% of the voting rights and has control over the financial and operating policies of the investee, in order to derive economic benefits from its activities. When the Company no longer holds control over the subsidiary, the investment is derecognized. Distributions of profits received by the Company from the accumulated profits of the subsidiary after the date control was obtained are recognized in the Company's income statement. Other distributions are considered a return of investment and are deducted from the investment value.

Investments in associates are recognized when the Company holds between 20% and less than 50% of the voting rights of the investees and has significant influence over the financial and operating policy decisions of those entities.

Investments in subsidiaries, joint ventures, and associates are initially recognized at cost and are not adjusted for changes in the investors' share of the investee's net assets. The cost includes the purchase price and any directly attributable investment-related expenses. In cases where the investment is made with non-monetary assets, the cost of the investment is recorded at the fair value of those non-monetary assets at the time of the transaction.

Provision for impairment of investments in subsidiaries, joint ventures, and associates is made when the investee incurs losses that may lead to a loss of the invested capital or when the investment value is impaired. The basis for recognizing a provision for impairment is the financial statements of the investee company.

Investments in other entities refer to investments in equity instruments of other entities in which the Company does not have control, joint control, or significant influence over the investee. These investments are initially recognized at cost. Subsequently, the Board of Management reviews all such investments at year-end to determine if a provision for impairment should be recorded.

A provision for impairment of investments in other entities is made at the end of the financial year when there is a decrease in the value of such investments. The provision is calculated based on market value, if such value can be reliably determined. If the market value cannot be reliably determined, the provision is based on the losses incurred by the investee.

The difference between the provision recognized at the end of the current financial year and that of the prior year is recognized as an increase or decrease in financial expenses during the year. The reversal of a provision is limited to the original carrying amount of the investment.

Profit division:

Net profit after corporate income tax can be distributed to shareholders after approval by the general meeting of shareholders and after setting aside reserve funds according to the Company's Charter and Vietnamese legal regulations.

The company allocates the following provisions from its after-tax net profit as per the proposal of the Board of Directors and approved by the shareholders at the General Meeting of Shareholders:

Investment and development fund: This fund is set aside to serve the expansion of operations or in-depth investment of the Company.

Bonus and welfare fund: This fund is set aside to reward, encourage materially, bring common benefits and improve employee welfare, and is presented as a liability on the balance sheet.

Dividends are recognized as a liability on the financial statements after being approved by the General Meeting of Shareholders and announced by the Company's Board of Directors.

Revenue recognition

Revenue is recognised when the outcome of such transactions can be measured reliably and it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transactions will flow to the Company. Following conditions of specific records must also be met when recorded sales:

Revenue from the sales of goods is recognized when all five (5) following condition are satisfied:

- a) The Company has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards of ownership of the goods;
- b) The Company retains neither continuing managerial involvement to the degree usually associated with ownership nor effective control over the goods sold;
- c) The amount of revenue can be measured reliably;
- d) It is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Company; and
- e) The costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be measured reliably.

Revenue from rendering of services shall be recognized when all of the following conditions are satisfied:

- a) The amount of revenue can be measured reliably;
- b) The Company received or shall probably receive the economic benefits associated with the transaction;
- c) The completed work may be determined at the time of the report;
- d) Incurred costs for the transaction and the costs to complete the transaction of providing such services may be determined reliably.

Principles for recording cost of goods sold

Cost of goods sold reflects the cost value of products, goods and services sold during the period. Cost is recorded at the time the transaction occurs or when there is a relatively certain possibility that it will arise in the future, regardless of whether money has been spent or not. Cost of goods sold and revenue are recorded simultaneously according to the matching principle.

Revenue from financial activities

Financial income includes earnings from the company's financial activities, such as:

- Interest from deposits and loans
- Exchange rate differences

Revenue arising from interest, royalties, dividends, profit distribution, and other financial activity income is recognized when both of the following conditions are met:

- The revenue can be measured reliably;
- It is possible to obtain economic benefits from that transaction.

Financial expenses

Financial expenses are the costs that a company must incur related to financial activities, including:

- Expenses the company must pay for loans, including bank interest, interest from credit institutions, or loans from other external sources.
- Exchange rate differences
- Insurance costs related to assets and financial instruments that the company is using.
- Costs of issuing shares, bonds, or other financial instruments.

In considering each relationship between related parties, the nature of the relationship is emphasized rather than the legal form.

Determining Fair Value when Preparing Financial Statements

The company does not determine fair value because Circular 210/2009/TT-BTC dated 06 November 2009, issued by the Ministry of Finance, and the current regulations do not provide guidance on determining the fair value of financial assets and financial debt instruments.

Taxation

The company records and reports taxes based on the documents and invoices arising during the period;

Corporate income tax reflects the total amount of tax payable for the current period. The current tax payable is calculated based on the taxable income for the period. Taxable income differs from the net profit presented in the income statement because taxable income does not include income or expenses that are taxable or deductible in other years (including carried-forward losses, if any), and also excludes non-taxable or non-deductible items.

The determination of tax liability for each type of tax is conducted in accordance with the relevant tax laws and the Tax Administration Law. The final tax payable amount will be determined by the tax authorities upon examining The Company's tax settlement.
